From Our Mailbox

"Hello. Since March 1, 2020, when public Masses were cancelled in the Diocese of Gary in which I reside, I have watched Sunday and Holy Day Masses online from a variety of churches. Although I have long since returned to attending Mass in person and supporting my own parish and others within driving distance of Northwest Indiana, I have found that I still enjoy watching online Mass from parishes across the United States and supporting those parishes as well. You are receiving this letter and my regular Mass contribution of $20 because I watched online Mass from your parish on July 31, the 18th Sunday in Ordinary Time. I enjoyed watching online Mass from your parish and am grateful that you have Mass available for people who are unable to attend in person. My family and I wish your clergy, staff and parishioners continued peace, joy and good health. Thank you."

I hope you are feeling blessed today by this person and their family. Letters like this are one of many reasons we continue to offer Mass online and formation programs for our parishioners and any others who join us. We are so blessed here at Cabrini!

Upcoming CEC Weekends

Christians Encounter Christ (CEC) is a Catholic movement within the Archdiocese of Omaha. The Christians Encounter Christ Movement believes that Christianity can penetrate all areas of the secular world, living, growing, and transferring Christ's values to society. The CEC Method is introduced in a highly structured 2 1/2 day weekend experience, beginning on Friday evening and ending Sunday night. It is a combined effort of laity and clergy, offering a personal encounter with Jesus. CEC is an opportunity for every Catholic or Christian who wishes to strengthen and ignite their faith! It is open to persons of all faiths. You are strengthened spiritually as you live and study with priests and laity with talks, discussion, prayer, and song. These all help you to know, to love and to serve God. The talks present the theme of God's grace in you, how this grace comes more alive in a Christian community, and how to share this grace with others. There is also daily celebration of Mass. This is not a quiet retreat experience, but a lively, joyous, Spirit-filled opportunity for you to allow Jesus to work in your life, see and experience Him in the lives around you, and learn practices and a method of perseverance to keep Him in your life and bring Him to others through your Christian leadership. The upcoming weekend for Men is October 7-9, and for Women is October 14-16. Retreats are held at the Columban Fathers Retreat Center in the heart of Bellevue, NE. For more information, or to sign up for a retreat, visit the CEC website: www.christiansencounterchrist.org or contact Deacon Doug Lenz at dalenz@archomaha.org or Ann Lenz at amlenz@archomaha.org

Pastor's Letter

Dear Friends,

Ready or not school starts again this week. Teachers have been roaming around the campus the past week preparing their classrooms and their spirits. It has probably been too warm for students to start feeling the excitement of a new school year, but they have been getting their backpacks ready and their supplies bought. A lot of preparation has been going on and will go on in the days ahead.

In anticipation of the new school year, I thought I would give you some wisdom from wise teachers concerning a teacher's focus as a new school year begins. While this is wisdom for teachers, it also has value for all of us in how we approach these days. These are taken from the Circe blog:

Grant George: "Start afresh—every year, every semester, every day, every class. Because the best teaching is simply loving what I love in front of my students, it is vital that whatever it is I'm teaching is fresh in my heart and mind."

Greg Wilbur: "A good teacher needs to be consciously mindful of the souls of her students. This does not mean that you baptize every lesson with a scripture verse, but rather you take into account the spiritual formation of the students via the content and manner of what you teach. All of the disciplines of study either reflect God's works of creation (the created order, numbers, cosmos, music, science, etc.) or His works of providence (history, philosophy, theology, people, and nations). The more you learn, the humbler you are in the face of all you do not know—which leads to wonder and awe at the Almighty and the works of His hands."

Cindy Rollins: "I hesitate to say this because it sounds like a one-upper answer, a little too precious; but I can't not say it because each day it is pressed upon me as the one habit needful for teaching. It is prayer. Prayer is a way of seeing. Education is a way of seeing. Prayer trains our mind like no other habit. Simone Weil says that prayer is the ultimate goal of attention. We can pray for wisdom and we can pray for our students, but prayer opens our eyes to see those things we might have missed. It starts out inward and moves us out of ourselves. The more we venture out of ourselves, the more we see how needful the habit of prayer is to the teacher."

Peter Vande Brake: "Of course there are many habits that good teachers have, but if I can only talk about one, I will settle on curiosity. Curiosity renews a teacher's excitement and joy for teaching because a curious teacher continually has new information to present to his or her students. There is nothing that a teacher loves more than being able to get a student excited about the subject matter that he or she loves and has made a career out of teaching. It leads a teacher to constant discoveries about the world and the Creator of that world. Curiosity compels a teacher to ask good questions about what he or she wants to know which fosters a sense of inquiry that the teacher can then pass on to students."

Matt Bianco: "The good teacher will develop habits of provoking necessary questions from their students, rather than answering unasked questions. The good teacher will give students the opportunity to discover truth on their own, rather than dump truth on them. As David Hicks writes in Norms & Nobility, 'Only the careless and unskilled teacher answers questions before they are asked. The teacher's chief task is to provoke the question, not to answer it; to cultivate in his students an active curiosity, not to inundate them in factual information.'"

See, wise words for all of us.

Peace,

Fr. Damian
