October Rosary Rally for Vocations

The Vocations Office is again leading an archdiocese-wide rosary rally for vocations in October and seeking to pray 75,000 rosaries to encourage our young men and women discerning priesthood and religious life. These young adults are in a spiritual battle and are trying to discern where God’s calling them in an increasingly faithless culture filled with constant distraction. They need our prayers. This isn’t a single event. Rather the rally is a month-long campaign. We need your help for this October Rosary Rally to be successful. Become a prayer warrior and pray the rosary in October, then log it on Omahavocations.org. Consider praying a rosary at your October Cabrini Community meeting and logging the total rosaries prayed.

28th Sunday in Ordinary Time

"It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for one who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." (MARK 10:25)

Jesus uses tough language that we may not want to hear. However, we are all called to be generous with all of our gifts. Not just the ones we pick and choose, but all our gifts, and especially the one that means the most to us! That includes our time in prayer to God, our talent in participating in parish ministries and our treasure supporting our local parish and other charities.

Pastor's Letter

Dear Friends,

Our country is in the final days of the four-year election cycle. Besides choosing our representatives and national leaders, we have several issues on the ballot this year which demand a choice from us. The ballot issues following the overturning of Roe v Wade may seem confusing. For this reason we are doing bulletin inserts the next few weeks to help you make your choices. There is also on the ballot an attempt by public school advocates to undo the school choice options that the Unicameral has passed. If the anti-school choice initiative passes it will hurt efforts to raise funds for our students at All Saints School.

There may be a temptation to seek to ignore all of this and specifically to avoid it when we come to church. Most of us try to avoid conflict with our neighbors and friends, but elections force us to make decisions that others may not like. Elections make it difficult to hide where we stand. The Church's obligation to participate in shaping the moral character of society is a requirement of our faith. It is a basic part of the mission we have received from Jesus Christ, who offers a vision of life revealed to us in Scripture and Tradition.

As the U.S. Bishops have said, Christ's love for us lets us see our human dignity in full clarity and compels us to love our neighbors as he has loved us. Christ, the Teacher, shows us what is true and good, that is, what is in accord with our human nature as free, intelligent beings created in God's image and likeness and endowed by the Creator with dignity and rights as well as duties. Christ also reveals to us the weaknesses that are part of all human endeavors. In the language of revelation, we are confronted with sin, both personal and structural. "The Church's wisdom," according to Pope Benedict XVI, "has always pointed to the presence of original sin in social conditions and in the structure of society."

All "structures of sin," as St. John Paul II calls them, "are rooted in personal sin, and thus always linked to the concrete acts of individuals who introduce these structures, consolidate them and make them difficult to remove." Thus, our faith helps us understand that the pursuit of a civilization of love must address our own failures and the ways in which these failures distort the broader ordering of the society in which we live. In the words of the Catechism of the Catholic Church, "Ignorance of the fact that man has a wounded nature inclined to evil gives rise to serious errors in the areas of education, politics, social action and morals."

As Pope Francis, quoting Pope Benedict XVI, reaffirmed in Evangelii Gaudium, "We need to be convinced that charity 'is the principle not only of micro-relationships (with friends, with family members or within small groups) but also of macro-relationships (social, economic and political ones)'".

What faith teaches about the dignity of the human person, about the sacredness of every human life, and about humanity's strengths and weaknesses helps us see more clearly the same truths that also come to us through the gift of human reason. At the center of these truths is respect for the dignity of every person. This is the core of Catholic moral and social teaching. Because we are people of both faith and reason, it is appropriate and necessary for us to bring this essential truth about human life and dignity to the public square. We are called to practice Christ's commandment to "love one another". We are also called to promote the well-being of all, to share our blessings with those most in need, to defend marriage, and to protect the lives and dignity of all, especially the weak, the vulnerable, the voiceless...

The obligation to participate in political life is rooted in our baptismal commitment to follow Jesus Christ and to bear Christian witness in all we do. As the Catechism of the Catholic Church reminds us, "It is necessary that all participate, each according to his position and role, in promoting the common good. This obligation is inherent in the dignity of the human person. . . As far as possible citizens should take an active part in public life."

There you have it. It is an obligation that each of us has because we follow Jesus. Like it or not, you need to make choices and make sure those choices make it to the ballot. Over the next few weeks, pray and learn and then in November, vote.

Peace,

Fr. Damian
