Mount Michael Fall Festival

The 70th annual Mount Michael Fall Festival is Sunday, September 21st! The day will begin with Mass in the chapel at 9:30 am, followed by festival activities from 10 am – 4 pm. At 4 pm, join the monastic community for evening vespers in the chapel. This event is our largest fundraiser of the year that supports the monks at the Mount Michael Benedictine Abbey. The Fall Festival has a rich history, drawing large crowds to our campus each year for a day of fun, food, and fellowship! This year promises to be just as exciting. There will be art/craft vendors, inflatables, a beer garden, pumpkin patch, and so much more! And best of all, it is FREE to attend! Go to mmfallfestival.org for more information.

24th Sunday in Ordinary Time

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son."
JOHN 3:16

God created us to be in relationship with Him. Sin broke that relationship. Jesus came to earth so that we may reconcile our relationship with God. Following Jesus' example, we can be blessed with a joy-filled life on earth and eternal life in Heaven. These four points are known as the "kerygma" – the first proclamation of the Gospel. This core message is the basis of our Catholic faith. How do you live this out in your daily life?

Pastor's Letter

Dear Friends,

Once again, there is violence in our country. In a high school and on a university campus, people were shot and killed. Once again, people stand on different sides of political spectrums and shout slogans at each other. Once again, dialogue is missing, respect is missing, Christian truth is missing. All sides spend more time perfecting their slogans than trying to understand the rationale and life experience of those who are on the other side.

I am sad that what was so common as I was studying in college and graduate school has been reduced to abbreviated phrases claiming to represent the entire argument. While I complained about the massive amount of reading that was required of philosophy and theology majors, I became aware it often required the reading of 600 pages to truly understand the intellectual approach that was being proposed. We worked hard, in the past, to make sure that there was a clear separation between the person and their intellectual argument. A person was not good or bad because of a solid or flawed argument they held. Patience and hard work brought about common understandings, not the number of likes you receive on social media.

There are so many suffering among us and in our world. Jesus teaches us to be like him and notice the missing lamb, the lost coin, and the son who fell away. Our present political system has been saying for a while now that they are no longer going to do the noticing of those who are missing. If they are not going to notice, then the responsibility falls on you and me to notice and reach out.

The phrase "All Lives Matter" emerged to counter movements that focused on unique groups. While the assertion "all lives matter" is true, its use in this context often serves to undermine and dismiss the specific struggles marginalized people face. The response fails to recognize the unique historical and social contexts that caused the lamb to wander away. If lambs wander away every day, then we should look at making some changes to make sure that does not keep happening. All lives matter, but Jesus wanted us to focus on the one life that was in need at that moment.

Shouting, "All houses matter" when a particular house is on fire ignores the urgent need for intervention in a specific instance of crisis on a specific house. The US Bishops' Conference has long taught "the preferential option for the poor" that is found in Jesus' teaching. This perspective asserts that God's love and justice are particularly directed toward those who are suffering.

The preferential option for the poor acknowledges that while all lives are valuable, those who are subjected to injustice require special attention and immediate response. This approach is not about elevating one group over another but about recognizing disparities and actively working to change them. We are called to solidarity with those who are suffering and to demand justice in light of their specific circumstances.

Let us take the time this week to try to understand those who are different from us. Let us notice those who are suffering. Let us be like Jesus and find those who are lost or have wandered away.

Peace,

Fr. Damian
